WEDNESDAY

This is a chaste and cheerful day, that makes a hit most everywhere; it took three medals and (they say) a ribbon at the county fair. On Monday man begins the week, and hardly gets his job on straight: next day he labors like a streak; on Wednesday he has struck his gait. He then makes every motion count, and thus he doesn't draw a blank; night finds him with a large amount of real godlets roamed abroad and spent fill with plunks the treasure chest!" And then when comes the rainy day—such days have come, and will again—"You cannot freeze our feet," we'll say, and open up a can of yen. So get to work while Wednesday dwells upon Time's evanescent chart, upon Time's evanescent chart, and then when sound the evening bells you'll go to rest with peace-

From a cruise over the Washington engineering district, during which she visited the fishing waters in the mouth of shore of Chesapeake bay and also went to West Point, Va., the United States Army engineer service tug Castle has returned to this port and is lying at the engineers' wharf on the Potomac Park side of the harbor opposite the foot of 14th street. One important duty the Castle is reported to have performed is the regulation of the distance out from the shore in which fishing nets can be placed in the season now about to open. For several cars past the fish nets have been gradnally encroaching on the deep water until vessels bound into the Potomac had ifficulty in finding a channel through the nets and much complaint was made. This season, it is stated, the nets will be kept out of deep water so that vessels can go in and out of the river without trouble. The shoving back of the nets will also allow shad and herring to enter the river on their way to their spawning grounds a carpenter and wood turner, from his about this city and will have the effect. it is claimed, of increasing the fish in future years. It is also stated that the nets are being forced back to reasonable limits in all the streams along the coast.
